Jonathan Blum, "The Rebel Heart Tour by Madonna was a unique concert, partly because it was the pop icon's first performance outside of the United States and during a tour that began half a world away. Performing in cities that were often not familiar to her, like Tel Aviv and Budapest, Madonna reached out to the public in ways that were previously considered impossible. When the tour reached Los Angeles in September, Madonna performed for her first time at Staples Center. Watch Madge's show in its entirety on the official YouTube channel. The tour proved to be an enormously successful experience for Madonna, with numerous commercial and critical successes, and a blockbuster world tour that quickly grossed over $111 million. Look closely and you'll see that the set — which was pretty amazing by any standard — was designed with a similar look and feel to the music video for Rebel Heart.
